

2021 THE BIG TELL WINNERS

A Movement Known Around the World by Jeremy Miller

The global popping dance movement originated in west Fresno. Meet popping pioneer Boogaloo Sam and discover the dance's impact on the local hip hop community.

Good Fire by Erica Tom

For thousands of years the North Fork Mono Tribe has used fire to restore Central Valley land. A look at this practice amidst a time of drought, megafires, and climate change.

Hope in a Basket by Chad Saecheo

Asian strawberry farmers in Visalia share the roots of their business and what it takes to own one of the busiest strawberry stands in town.

Kaweah Kweens by Zach Green Films

From the foothills to Capitol Hill—middle school girls help pass national legislation combating climate change.

Little Big Gym by Rigoberto Moran

A small gym in Farmersville is a free outlet for kids to play and learn—and a source of inspiration for the community.

Mammoths in Madera?! by Eddie Garcia

A paleontologist uncovers Madera's Ice Age history after an intact mammoth tusk led to the discovery of a trove of fossils in a Madera landfill.

Mi Elotero (My Corn Man) by Carolina De La Torre

Community support is imperative as Latino street vendors face a rise in violence against them.

Not Just any Restaurant by Matt Mealer

A mother and daughter draw on 130 years of Central Valley heritage as they breathe new life into an iconic Basque restaurant in Los Banos.

Reclaiming Medicine by Jennifer Robin

A look at the Southern Sierra Miwuk Nation's traditional basket making and medicine gathering. Elder basket weavers share why cultivating medicine is important to the tribe.

Stan Bitters: Ceramics Wizard by Ed Goto

A documentary focusing on the impact this local internationally-known ceramics artist had on the 1960's Organic Modernist Craft Movement.

